Mukul brought a depth of experience and insight to a number of training activities at UNITAR. Over the years we have engaged with him, Mukul quickly formed deep mentoring relationships with a number of representatives from post-conflict countries, most notably Afghanistan. He worked diligently to guide individuals and teams in the development of targeted project documents which comprehensively addressed areas of identified need. In addition, his training modules on leadership and communication - consistently of excellent instructional design - were well received by senior government officials of a number of countries, as well as representatives of the United Nations.
